Please send these to:

The tentative outline for the program is as follows:

Friday Afternoon, November 1, Assembly Hall, University of Michigan
Rackham Building, Open Workshop on Projectile Point Typology:

Open to anyone to bring examples of projectile points from your area. This is not a meeting to decide anything but just to see how other people are typing and describing projectile points. Hopefully, we will have type collections from the southeast, northeast, and midwest. There is no deadline for participation in this session; just come! The program chairman would like to know if you wish table space for display.
